Please read before completing your application:

You are about to embark on a 200-hour training program to prepare you to become an Emergency Medical Technician within the State of Washington. During this time, studying and completing assignments on your own time outside of class will be necessary. This will include reading the textbook, knowing and understanding definitions as they pertain to the training program, knowing and understanding the equipment used in emergency medicine, and practicing the practical skills expected of an EMT. You will also be required to perform clinical and field rotations at Mason General Hospital and with a medic unit within Mason County.

Other things to know before you apply:

- You must have access to a working computer with internet access. All homework assignments, midterms, and final exams are completed online. Cell phones and tablets do not provide adequate access to the required materials.
- Completing this course does not grant certification as an EMT. You must also pass your National Registry of EMT (NREMT) cognitive exam and submit your application to the Washington State Department of Health.
- If your sponsoring agency is within Mason County, you must pass the Northwest Region (NWREMS) Protocols Exam before the Medical Program Director signs your Department of Health Application. After completing your protocol exam, you will be assigned Mason County Core Training courses and enrolled in the Mason County Ongoing Training and Evaluation Program (OTEP).
- If your sponsoring agency is outside Mason County, please check with your agency for additional requirements.
- The class must have 12 students registered at the deadline to commence.

Course Completion Requirements:

- Pass midterm and final exams with 80% or above.
